

Dear Families,

Today, your child learned about emergency situations and the importance of listening to an adult in an emergency. They learned to identify the sounds they would hear to indicate an emergency, and they practiced listening and following directions quickly through common children's games like Follow the Leader; Red Light, Green Light; Simon Says, and Freeze Dance. Playing these games at home with children can help reinforce the importance of listening to an adult in an emergency. Talk with children about the sounds they might hear if they were in an emergency at home and what they should do if they hear those sounds.
